Current Environment: Higher Education Services and the Web

Migration of key student services to the web continues to be a significant hurdle for many Colleges and Universities. In our conversations with campus administrators we have heard a common theme: few options exist between the extremes of completely replacing existing "legacy" systems on the one hand, and building custom solutions from scratch on the other. The limitations of either option – high cost, long development cycles, and prolonged disruptions to operations – leave many campuses wishing for a better solution.

FairChoice Systems: A Better Solution

FairChoice Systems was founded to answer the need for a pragmatic alternative to options currently available. As a fully integrated team of Higher Education professionals with extensive expertise managing the entire lifecycle of IT projects, we have developed a client-centered methodology for managing the migration of campus services to the web. Our focus is to build on each client's existing investment in technology and personnel and extend the life of your current system of record. The result? A new approach that is more efficient, more effective, and less disruptive.

How Does FairChoice Do It?

We Assume Project Accountability

Working with you and other campus stakeholders, we take responsibility for coordinating every aspect of the project life cycle. We clarify key decision points, track progress, communicate risks, and deliver results.

We Collaborate With Campus Stakeholders

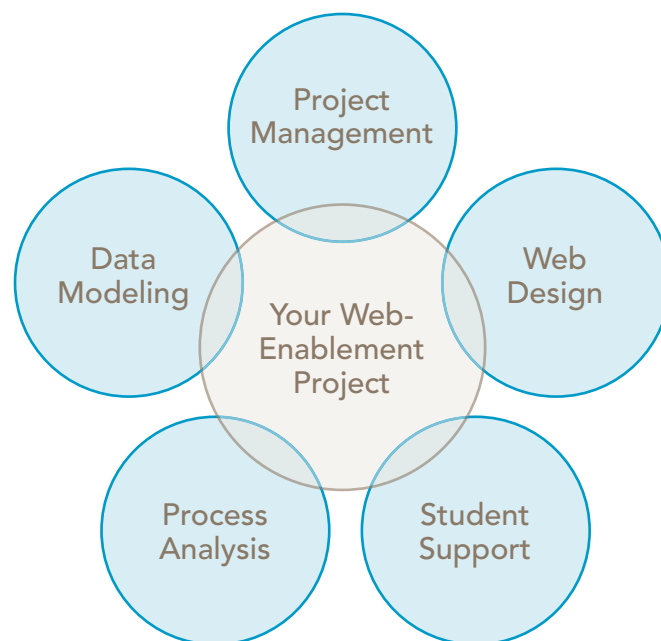

We identify and leverage unique areas of expertise that already exist on each campus and bridge the gap between campus IT and end users. The result is a process that is flexible, practical, and cost-effective.

We Apply Our Experience

The FairChoice Systems consulting team has deep experience in the web-enablement of legacy systems in Higher Education. Our team includes experts in student services, technology development, web design, and project management.

We Provide Extra Capacity

Successful project delivery requires dedicated resources. FairChoice can provide the bandwidth to jump-start your project and see it through to completion. The result is that your project receives the attention it deserves without major disruptions in your day-to-day operations.
